

Edison Court Affiliates with Inperium

Helping to Extend the Continuum of Care Through Relationships

In recent years, there has been an increase in mergers, asset transfers, and affiliations involving nonprofit organizations. Edison Court President, Jay Deppeler, remarks that in an environment where revenue has stagnated while financial costs continue to climb, these “business relationships” allow non-profits to benefit from economies of scale so valuable resources can be conserved for service delivery.

Edison Court is pleased to announce its affiliation with the non-profit Inperium. Inperium, located in Reading, Pennsylvania, was established to support and oversee its affiliated companies to assure that quality services and continuity of care are consistently provided to all individuals in a way that makes proficient use of available public funding. Inperium is governed by a Board of Directors comprised of its Officers and independent members of the communities served by Inperium’s affiliated companies.

Edison Court looks forward to our affiliation with Inperium. Affiliation will allow us to share many “back office” expenses across multiple entities creating substantial costs savings. As a result of these efficiencies, our stakeholders will continue to benefit from our tradition of service excellence and expanded program offerings. Jay is excited about the opportunities this affiliation will offer our employees as well. Inperium became the nation’s first not-for-profit human services organization to sponsor an employee stock ownership program.

Jay expects that the programs, clients, and employees of Edison Court will benefit from this affiliation by allowing us to extend our continuum of intensive care programs to counties in the Commonwealth in which Inperium has long been a trusted partner.
